Holiday Gala:
36 Years of Giving Back

Shining lights, festive music, and the glamour of a high end gala—the Chamber of Commerce of Eastern CT Foundation has been hosting the highlight of the holiday season for 36 years. The Foundation, an independent board and 501c3 which benefits from its connection with the Chamber and its staff, raises funds each year to benefit the region’s children and families.

In March 2019, the Chamber of Commerce of Eastern Connecticut Foundation donated $120,000 to 37 nonprofit organizations, including the Miracle League of Southeastern Connecticut, Tommy Toy Fund, Higher Edge, Madonna Place, Always Home, UCFS, and EWIB. This year’s grants reflect the highest-ever amount distributed by the Foundation and mark a twelve percent increase over 2018.

The Foundation and the Chamber staff invite you to join us in celebrating the season and contribute to the vital efforts of so many nonprofit organizations in the region. Hosted by Mohegan Sun, the evening features a champagne reception, a decadent dinner and dessert buffet along with the region’s largest silent auction and an authentic live auction.

Top sponsors for the event include Family First Life, People’s United Bank and The Day.
Workforce Challenges and Opportunities Discussed at October Business Breakfast

In working to meet the labor shortage, Flaherty pointed to the much higher number of men than women hired in manufacturing. Calling out the hardworking staff of the morning’s venue as an example, he suggested employers look at people with different backgrounds, but a strong work ethic, to fill positions by providing the right training.

The Eastern Connecticut Workforce Investment Board (EWIB) is helping the region navigate this intersection between employer needs and training the workforce. Mark Hill, Chief Operating Officer, EWIB spoke about the Eastern CT Manufacturing Pipeline Initiative (MPI), a nationally-recognized training program. He shared the story of the MPI’s strategy, process, and results and discussed expanding and scaling for future programs.

With manufacturing the fastest growing sector, EWIB responded to employers’ need to hire thousands of employees with training programs designed for existing job openings. The collaborative partnership includes EWIB, employers, organized labor, community colleges, technical and comprehensive high schools, adult education, the CT Department of Labor, and CT Department of Economic and Community Development along with other agencies.

Working through the American Job Centers, which connect with 11,000 people each year, they create a talent pipeline that brings job seekers with the right aptitude into the training program. A process of assessments, interviews and training lead to 96% of trainees ending the program with a job offer. Notably, 80% of MPI job placements had no formal manufacturing work experience prior to enrollment.

Since its launch in 2014, the success of the program outpaced projections, garnering interest from 8,500 applicants, conducting 60 training classes and leading to 1,512 job placements.

The program is being expanded to high schools to offer students who are not planning to attend college a strong career pathway. The Youth MPI pilot of 19 students at Norwich Free Academy led to an 100% placement rate.

“Many students are looking for a path that allows them to work with their hands,” said Hill. The program design involves employers in curriculum and assessment, adjusts timing and scale to job openings, reduces training and hiring cost while increasing retention and productivity. EWIB is already working on a health care pipeline solution for that growing industry, and the award-winning model is being shared with other workforce boards.

Business Community Gathers to Thank Military at Chamber Event

Over 300 members of the military, veterans, government leaders, business leaders and community members gathered at the Mystic Marriott Hotel on November 1 for the 10th Annual Military Appreciation Breakfast. The Chamber of Commerce of Eastern CT hosts this breakfast each year to create an opportunity for the business community to gather in a show of support and gratitude for those who serve in the military. Through the generous support of General Dynamics Electric Boat, Foxwoods and Dunkin’, active duty members of the military were invited to attend as special guests.

Leaders from the military community offered their remarks about the special relationship the military enjoys with the community of eastern Connecticut.

Rear Admiral Butch Dollaga, Commander, Undersea Warfighting Development Center recounted his experiences as a submariner in Groton as a junior officer to his current work on tactics in the undersea domain. “I think the United States builds the best, most lethal, most capable submarines in the world and it starts with Electric Boat,” said Dollaga, sharing the information that seven submarines from Groton were deployed and completed 24 missions vital to national security.

Electric Boat President Kevin Graney, a veteran submarine officer, said, “Our mission is simple and that is to give the men and women of our submarine force every unfair advantage we can give you.”

Speaking on behalf of the 5,200 Army and Air CT national guardsmen, Major General Francis J. Evon Jr., Adjutant General, Connecticut National Guard expressed his appreciation for the employers who support their service: “I want to thank those employers and encourage you to continue to hire veterans and provide guardsmen the flexibility to do their training and increase their readiness in defense of our national security.”

Captain William Smith, Chief, Mission Support, US Coast Guard Academy shared the long history of the Academy in this region, its strong ties in the community, and its preeminence in the Northeast as the highest ranked public college.

Chamber of Commerce of Eastern CT President Tony Sheridan noted the invaluable contribution members of military families make in the region, saying “These are all wonderfully bright, capable people so our quality of life is dramatically enhanced by their participation.”

At the event, the Chamber of Commerce of Eastern CT’s Military Affairs Council recognized two businesses who go above and beyond with the Military Community Support Award: Antonino Auto Group and Cardinal Honda. The awards were presented by Angela Clay and Dara Wicken, both of Navy Federal Credit Union and co-chairs of the Military Affairs Council of the Chamber.

Antonino Auto Group, represented by Chris Antonino, stepped up when government employees were placed on furlough during the government shutdown in January, donating $30,000 to the Chief Petty Officers Association. Each of the nine Antonino dealerships held a drive for Save-a-Suit, resulting in a van full of over 100 suits to be given to veterans entering the civilian workforce.

Cardinal Honda, represented by Kevin Tobey at the event, employs many active duty military spouses and veterans. The Cardinal Foundation purchased parade rifles for parade groups, hosted military appreciation picnics and barbecues, and opened the dealership to military groups to hold car washes for fundraisers. Navy law enforcement officers partnered with Cardinal to raise money and awareness for Connecticut Special Olympics.

The morning’s program opened with U.S. Navy Silver Dolphins Color Guard and the singing of the National Anthem by the Fitch High School Chamber Choir. The Fitch choir also honored each branch with the Armed Forces Medley.

Mystic Aquarium Reaches Clean Up Goal for 2019

Through its Ocean Ambassadors program, Mystic Aquarium engaged thousands of conservation-minded individuals in cleanups in the region. “Collectively we removed over 1,000 lbs. of litter and debris from our coast in 2019; allowing us to reach the goal that we set for the year,” said Kelly Matis, Vice President of Education & Conservation for Mystic Aquarium. “We are grateful for participation from individuals and families who share the same desire to care for our ocean planet.”

Mystic Aquarium cleanup sites this summer included Connecticut locations at Lighthouse Point in New Haven, Calf Pasture in Norwalk, Waterford Town Beach in Waterford, Byram Park in Greenwich and Bluff Point State Park in Groton as well as Rhode Island locations at Napatree Point in Westerly and Surfer’s End in Middletown. The Ocean Ambassador’s coastal cleanup series culminated with the Mystic-Wide Cleanup earlier this month.

NTE Energy Names New Leadership Team

NTE Energy’s Tim Eves, Mike Green and Stephanie Clarkson will share oversight of all company operations as it continues development of new power plants in Connecticut and the Carolinas.

As co-presidents, Eves, Green and Clarkson – key members of the NTE senior leadership team for the past several years – will share ownership and day-to-day management of the company. They succeed Seth Shortlidge, who in 2009 founded NTE with his wife, Jane, as an energy consulting firm and as president expanded it to become a leading energy developer and power supplier.

“Sadly, Jane did not live to see the opening of the Middletown Energy Center and Kings Mountain Energy Center, under development when she passed away from cancer in 2014,” Shortlidge said. “Now that these two major projects are operational, and as the 5th anniversary of Jane’s passing approaches, I have decided to step away from my role as head of NTE in order to spend more time with my three children.”

Clarkson noted that under Shortlidge’s leadership, NTE made the Inc. 5000 list of fastest-growing private companies six times in its first 10 years. “We are excited to build on the strong foundation Seth laid for NTE during its first decade,” she said.

Eves agreed. “NTE has come a long way in 10 years,” said Eves, who as senior vice president oversaw NTE’s development of the 475-megawatt Middletown (Ohio) Energy Center and is currently overseeing the 650-megawatt Killingly Energy Center project in Connecticut. “We look forward to building on NTE’s track record of developing energy projects that provide cleaner, more efficient and more affordable power to communities across America.”

Orsted and Eversource Welcome Local Community to Future New London Office

On October 10, Ørsted and Eversource Joint Venture (JV) officially marked the arrival of their first Connecticut office in downtown New London. Members of the Orsted and Eversource Joint Venture joined alongside their future neighbors and the New London business community at a ceremonial groundbreaking event at the Muddy Waters Café at 42 Bank Street.

“The governor, port authority, city and local industry leaders have been fantastic partners, and we are looking forward to beginning constructions on Connecticut’s first offshore wind projects,” said Thomas Brostrom, President of Ørsted North America. “It’s time to set up a permanent presence for the JV in New London, and I can think of no better place than in a historic downtown building with views of State Pier.”

The new JV office will occupy the 2nd and 3rd floors of 42 Bank Street, with a total size of roughly 3,000 square feet. The office will host two conference spaces and private offices. The lease for the property was signed in December of 2018 and will run for at least five years.

“Offshore wind is an incredible opportunity for Connecticut, and this office will be instrumental as we carry out our current wind procurement contracts,” said Eversource Vice President of Offshore Wind Michael Auseré. “The Revolution Wind project will deliver 300 MW of offshore wind power to Connecticut, enough to power over 125,000 homes.”

The JV’s commitments to Connecticut include a $93 million dollar public-private-partnership with the state to drive infrastructure improvements at State Pier that will modernize the facility for modern cargo and support the maximum utilization of the space. Additional commitments have been made in the form of grants and funding to support local industries and nonprofit organizations.

“New London was founded as a whaling city, we used to light homes with oil brought in by ships, said Barry Neistat, co-owner of the Muddy Waters Café. “It’s time for New London to once again light our homes with energy from offshore. Ørsted and Eversource felt that the second and third floors of my building would be the perfect place to fully connect with the New London community. I’m looking forward to welcoming them as our neighbor in the coming months.”

Renovation of the office is expected to be completed in Q2020, including structural repairs and the installation of a back deck. Current designs maintain the historic facade of the building. Work on the property, built in 1830, is being carried out by local contractor David Preka, President and CEO of Advanced Group in Mystic.

Mystic Seaport Museum Announces Support for Earth Day 2020

“The 50th anniversary of Earth Day in 2020 will mark a pivotal year for our planet as the Earth needs our attention now more than ever,” says Stephen C. White, president of Mystic Seaport Museum. “We recognize our obligation specifically to the Mystic River and its watershed and in the spirit of the Earth Day Network’s mission to activate the environmental movement worldwide; we look forward to engaging a host of like-minded community partners as well as the general public in support of habitat restoration, conservation and overall collective action.”

October 22 marks six months to Earth Day, and on this day, Mystic Seaport Museum announced its support for Earth Day 2020 and the EARTHRISE movement, which will mobilize across the globe on April 22, 2020 to turn out millions across generations, sectors, and continents to demand immediate action on climate change.

In partnership with Mystic Aquarium and other community organizations, the Museum looks to hold events to share information about the history of the local watershed including human impacts and offer educational opportunities and activities to shed light on ways we all can become better stewards of the planet. It is critically important to protect Long Island Sound and maintain its water quality as a living resource to more than 1,200 species of invertebrates, 170 species of fish and dozens of species of migratory birds.
